The theoretical law next to a west civilization is the Doxa of an orality culture that expresses the lowest and the highest feeling inside or outside the truth of institutions between the object of the same public body and a cave volume of absolute to further through a city of memory the corporative language and the neoplatonic substrate of a philosophical thought for the nature being a way to substitute to intolerant behaviours of an outright and individual reality the belonging sentiment to an universal whole.
